CANADA TIP

Many products in Canada come with a manufacturer's warranty, and some stores also sell extended warranties for an extra cost.

Before buying an extended warranty, ask:

What does it cover?

How long does it last?

Is it worth the extra money?

Always keep your receipt and warranty information in a safe place.

Why Warranties Matter

When you buy a new product, it often comes with a warranty. A warranty is a promise from the manufacturer or the store that they will repair, replace, or sometimes refund the product if there is a problem within a certain period of time.

For example, a laptop may have a one-year warranty. If the computer stops working because of a manufacturing defect, the company may repair it for free.

However, warranties usually do not cover accidental damage, misuse, or normal wear and tear. It is important to read the warranty carefully and keep your receipt because you may need it if you make a claim.

Knowing your warranty helps you protect your purchase and avoid unnecessary expenses.
